

Patrice Fife is a seasoned professional in Business Administration, now with the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary's Marriage and Family Therapy Department. Her extensive experience in organizing data, improving processes, and supporting staff shines through. Beyond her workplace duties, Patrice also serves on the Board of Directors for the Worksite Wellness Council of Louisville, advocating for employee and student health and well-being.

In her role, Patrice tackles vital administrative tasks, drawing on her skills in organization, attention to detail, and dedication to supporting faculty, staff, and students within the MFT department. She aims to enhance operational efficiency, foster collaboration, and make significant contributions to the department's mission and objectives.

Patrice's academic journey includes an Associate of Applied Science in Business Administration from Eastern Gateway Community College. Her commitment to ongoing education is evident as she pursues her Bachelor of Liberal Arts (BLA) and holds a Certification as a Health and Wellness Coach from the Los Angeles Health Coach Institute. These accomplishments highlight her dedication to professional development and her steadfast commitment to future endeavors.
